Dear Josh and Marguerite:

This is by way of follow-up to my phone call thanking you both for your lovely invitation to spend an evening with you at Rockefeller University. I am so sorry that my schedule will prohibit me from attending the reception and dinner as the evening promises to be memorable.

Josh, I am truly sorry that I will be unable to say in person what I will convey here on paper. I want to take this opportunity to thank you especially for your role as Chairman of the Pew Scholars Program in the Biomedical Sciences. Your leadership and insight have made the program the success it is and I am proud that the Trusts has been able to benefit so much from your talent and guidance. I am sure that your continued work at the Lederberg laboratory will produce the sorts of revelations in science and human health for which you are justifiably renowned. I expect, however, that those who are able to attend share my sentiments, and my voice will be just one missing from a chorus of appreciation.

Again, thanks to you both and best wishes for a wonderful evening.

Sincerely,

Rebecca Rimel
